Course description:	This is course of applied social science, aimed to provide an overview of the fields of social education and of the strategies, methodologies and instruments available to identify objectives, as well as to design, organize and evaluate interventions. The course aims to generate a participative setting in which students actively engage in skill development. A variety of literature will be offered, and each student will be able to deepen a field of their choice by reading and by presenting field experiences of their own to be discussed with peers.
Specific educational objectives:	Corso di area caratterizzante, settore scientifico M-PED/01 EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES: The course will analyze several methodologies and fields of practice in social education, through targeted literature and by generating processes of reflexivity about social interventions experienced or observed by students themselves. Therefore, the course will provide both a general overview of scientific contents, as well as professional skills and methodologies to craft targeted interventions. METHODOLOGY: It will be a participative course, with some presentations by the professor, instances of flipped classroom methodology, debates as well as guest teachers and professionals. It will offer a choice of readings and practical tasks for students to self-elaborate and -jointly with peers- construct packages of knowledge that are particularly useful for their preferred fields of practice, while introducing a general overview of key elements for all.
