Including many of todays famous artists (like Joseph Beuys, Alighiero Boetti, Hanne Darboven, Hans Haacke, Eva Hesse, Jannis Kounellis, Mario Merz, Michelangelo Pistoletto, Richard Serra, Gilberto Zorio among others) the show was also an attack on the traditional understanding of the museum. 'Attitudes' in many aspects changed the understanding of artistic and curatorial practice. The studio Exhibit will review these changes. This review will not be purely intellectual, but will use the medium of re-enactment. Like Prada Foundation, which restaged the exhibition with the support of Germano Celant in 2013, we will re-invent it. In his introduction Szeemann describes his show as "a sum of narrations from a private point of view" (Ich-Form). After a historical introduction the participants of this studio will be invited to choose one of the participating artists and 'play' her/his role. How to produce the work (again) under a contemporary perspective? How to change the work in relation to another context of works? How to change argumentation respecting another historical frame? These will be questions with which we have to deal, developing a new concept of history and witness economy. The produced works will be shown in an exhibition, a documentation on the restaged show will also focus on the questions discussed during the project.

Educational objectives module 1 – Curatorial studies: theories and practices:

The students will be given basic instruments in order to:

- acquire a methodology in the field of curation, but also of artistic production
- acquire basic knowledge necessary to judge and enable a visual art project from a cultural and theoretical point of view
- acquire the basic knowledge to evaluate critically once own work and to deal with the complexities of contemporary society
- acquire the basic knowledge concerning the culture of artistic production in all its facets
- know relevant historical and theoretical aspects in the field of modern and contemporary art

Course description module 2 – Interior & Exhibit design:

Module 2 is closely linked to questions and goals posed by module 1, and relative outcomes, concerning exhibiting, restaging, and, more in general, presenting one's personal artistic production.

During the semester we will analyse, through many 'case studies', how artistic practice goes 'on stage', how it is exhibited and how it appears in front of the audience.

	The mid-semester assignment is the making of an exhibition. On this occasion we will put in practice what investigated on theory. During the preparation of the show we'll focus on: the works' materials and techniques, the works' exhibition design, the works' handling, the works' setting up and dismantling. Besides also the signage, the visual communication and the photographic documentation of the show, the critical writing and the preparation for the exhibition catalogue will be important aspect of the studio. A series of readings, visiting curators and artists, and the visit of shows, collections, and institutional spaces will complete the module 2 panorama on exhibition making Educational objectives Module 2 – Interior & Exhibit design: The students will be given basic instruments in order to: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• acquire a methodology in the field of artistic production;• acquire the basic knowledge to look critically at their own work and to deal with the complexities of contemporary society;• acquire the basic knowledge concerning the culture of artistic production in all its aspects;• the acquisition of the knowledge and understanding of different forms of exhibitions and the analysis of the relation between objects (artworks), space and audience;• the acquisition of the knowledge concerning organizational and technical aspects of exhibitions;• the acquisition of the basic concerning the communication, mediation and promotion of an exhibition. Course description module 3 – Artistic research: The topics of the course are directly linked with contents and targets of module 1 of the Studio: targets and methods of re-enactment, the re-invention of a famous art exhibition. In the mentioned exhibition the activity or artistic practice became the center of curatorial interest and this marks a change of a paradigm: the artwork was more and more substituted by the concept, the idea, the action in situ or the mere communication about that. This new artistic behaviour or "attitude" fits to the methods of artistic research and the different ways it is realised today. The course teaches necessary art-historical and art-theoretical knowledge, concentrated on the 1960th and 1970th and different critical positions. The course presents important theories and methods about the scientific field of

	the so called artistic research. For this reason, it is necessary to investigate historical and contemporary texts and examples of selected artists which participated in the exhibition "Live in your head. When Attitudes Become Form" from 1969. If we could claim that artistic practices are specific forms of research, then it is necessary to reflect on these practices with appropriate literature and own writings. Educational objectives module 3 – Artistic research: Purpose of the course is the communication of scientific and artistic methods and contents. The students will be given fundamental knowledge about: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> •

	Wieder-Erfindung einer berühmten Kunstausstellung. In den beiden zu untersuchenden Ausstellungen wurde die künstlerische Praxis das Zentrum des kuratorischen Interesses und das bedeutete einen Paradigmenwechsel. Das ehemalige Kunstwerk wurde immer mehr ersetzt durch das Konzept oder die Idee zum Werk, wie ebenso die Aktivität vor Ort oder selbst die bloße Kommunikation zu einer Absicht. Dieses neue Verhalten oder die „Haltung“ passt sehr gut zu den Methoden heutiger künstlerischer Forschung und den verschiedenen Wegen diese zu praktizieren. Die Lehrveranstaltung vermittelt notwendiges kunsttheoretisches, kunsthistorisches Wissen, bezogen auf die 1960er und 1970er Jahre des 20. Jahrhunderts sowie künstlerische Ausdrucksformen. Die künstlerische Praxis der Studierenden wird theoretisch begleitet, theoretisch unterstützend aufgebaut und analysiert. Die Vorlesung stellt die wichtigsten Theorien und Methoden zum Feld der Künstlerischen Forschung an Hand von Beispielen und Texten vor. Daher ist es notwendig, die historischen und zeitgenössischen Texte und Beispiele ausgewählter Künstler zu untersuchen, die an der Ausstellung „Live in Your Head. Whan Attitudes Become Form“ von 1969 teilnahmen. Wenn man feststellen kann, dass künstlerische Praktiken besondere Formen des Forschens sind, ist es notwendig über diese Praktiken zu reflektieren mittels entsprechender Literatur und eigenen Texten.

- Die Veränderung des Werkbegriffes und was es bedeutet, wenn das Konzept zum Werk wird
- Der künstlerische Schaffensprozess als künstlerische Forschung
- Methoden und Verfahren zum Verstehen und der Analyse des künstlerischen Arbeitsprozesses
- Verfassen und Strukturierung eigener schriftlicher Texte
