List of topics covered	This course discusses some key issues related to the economics of public services. Most of the course is devoted to the behavioural aspects of public service delivery. In particular, we will discuss how to use behavioural principles to deliver public services in the most effective way. This will show how to expand the public policy toolbox by including, for instance, nudges, as well as the importance of generally overlooked features like default options and deadlines in the delivery of public services. We will also analyse in depth specific public services, going from the design of the policies to the organizational issues related to their implementation.
Teaching format	The course will combine frontal lectures, discussion of case studies and projects. Students will be expected to participate actively in class discussions.
Learning outcomes	Through this course the students will develop the ability to understand the key issues related to the design and implementation of public services. Knowledge and understanding: The students will learn different theories and the empirical evidence regarding some important tools to effectively deliver public services. Applying knowledge and understanding: The students will develop the ability to apply the analytical methods presented to real world problems related to the implementation of public policies. Making judgments: The students will develop the ability to assess the main economic issues in public service delivery, to relate them to concrete problems, and to develop recommendations. Communication skills: Through discussions in class and the presentation of projects, the students will develop the ability to debate using appropriate analytical tools and evidence in the field of economics. Learning skills: Development of learning skills that allow students to continue to study at an advanced level.
Assessment	Written and project work: written exam with review questions and project report & presentation done in groups.
Assessment language	English (B1 level is required)
Evaluation criteria and criteria for awarding marks	60% written exam, 40% project report & presentation. For non-attending students: 100% written exam. Evaluation criteria relevant for both assessments: clarity of answers, mastery of specific terminology, ability to summarize, evaluate, and establish relationships between topics, ability to apply concepts to real-world examples.

Required readings	A required reading list will be distributed through reserve collection.
Supplementary material	Additional material will be distributed in class.
