

Arian Brajkovic

After graduating in Industrial Design at NABA starts working at Integral Studio Vinaccia, improving his design skills by developing products and packaging for sport equipment, consumer products and lighting. In 2010 collaborated with Francesco Librizzi Studio on the exhibition design project for the Italian pavilion at the XII Biennale di Architettura in Venice. After obtaining a Master degree in Interior Design opens his own studio and since then has been working in the beauty industry as a product and interior designer, having Aldo Coppola among his most prominent clients. In 2012 becomes part of NABA's teacher staff, first as an assistant and later as a professor. Is engaged with social design projects for craftsmanship since 2007 in countries such as Brazil, Egypt, Madagascar, Sri-Lanka, Lebanon and Iran. In 2014 becomes part of the UNIDO's permanent development programmes team.
